The Charleston News.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 11, 1869.

To Our Friends in the Country—In documents to New Subscribers.

We desire, if possible, to make THE NEWS, which is already without exception the cheapest newspaper in the South, a regular visitor in every well regulated household in this and the adjoining States. As an inducement to the planters to subscribe to THE NEWS before the expiration of the present year, we have arranged with Messrs. Walker, Beane & Osgood, the publishers of the RURAL CAROLINIAN, to supply them with and super-add agricultural magazines, together with THE NEWS, to all new subscribers, at the following very low rates:

THE DAILY NEWS and the RURAL CAROLINIAN, one year, for six dollars and fifty cents.

THE WEEKLY NEWS and the RURAL CAROLINIAN, one year, for four dollars.

Subscriptions to the two publications may be sent either to the proprietors of THE NEWS, or to the proprietors of the RURAL CAROLINIAN. But persons desiring to send themselves of this offer must do so before the first of January next, as the arrangement will not be extended beyond that period.

—The London Times on American finances says the fact that reputation has been practiced by all the States except Massachusetts, associated with the theory which would be paid in paper, injures American credit and deters success.

—The Grand Jury at New York on Wednesday, Recorder Hackett, referring to the McFarland-Richardson case, said: "If there has been any conspiracy, aided or abetted by any persons, no matter how elevated in life they may be, fearlessly investigate the matter, and arriving at the fact of probable guilt, promptly indict." It is not considered likely that McFarland will be tried until January.

—The Commercial Council was opened on Wednesday by the Pope. The weather was unfavorable, rain falling at intervals, but enormous crowds filled the Vatican and lined the streets through which the members of the Council passed. The Pope, followed by seven hundred bishops, proceeded to the Hall of Councils amid the ringing of bells and the cheering of cannon from the forts of St. Angelo and Mount Aventine. The Holy Father was in fine humor. The galleries of the Hall of Councils were occupied by sovereigns and princes now in Rome, by members of the corps diplomatique and other notables. The ceremonies executed in grandeur and magnificence may be said to have taken place in Rome within the present century.

—Among the features of the new census bill before Congress are provisions for the collection of the following items: First, the statistics of trade of every store and mercantile establishment in the United States; second, statistics respecting the mining and fishery industries and capital of the country; third, statistics giving a full exhibit of the internal transportation of the country, such as those by railroads, canals, river navigation and other modes, with the amount of capital employed therein, the number of passengers, rates of transportation and total cost; fourth, statistics in regard to the charitable and reformatory institutions of the country, as almshouses and hospitals, their inmates and expenses of supporting them, as well as the amount of money invested in such institutions. These four branches were not, it is said, included under any former census. The committee have carefully revised the bill and are endeavoring to make it more perfect and embracing the general scope of the census and making them more specific.

—It is well known by this time that Mr. Beecher deeply regrets the course pursued by him in the McFarland-Richardson case. The denunciations of the press, the unfriendly greetings of a large number of his own congregation, all have had an unhealthy influence on his temper. Still it is a comfort to know that he is ready to apologize to McFarland, and that he is not, as he is reported, as no doubt he will, for Mr. Beecher says: "If the investigation which I have long been conducting shall show me that I have formed a judgment injurious to McFarland, and inaccurate in regard to the other parties, I shall accept the truth, and make such reparation to McFarland as I can. But no man can act upon any after knowledge, and must depend only upon the light which he has at the time. Whatever changes may hereafter take place in regard to my judgment, I believe that I will not alter the fact that I believed that they were legally and morally divorced, and that their marriage was at once an act of justice and of mercy."

—The horrors of hydrophobia are graphically set forth in an account of the sufferings of John W. Alexander, at Lexington, Ky., last week. On Wednesday afternoon, when attempting to take a glass of water, he could not drink. He then expected the cause of his sickness and determined to fast. He tried to force water into his mouth with a spoon, but his arm gave a spasmodic jerk, sending the spoon flying through the air, and he fell back unharmed and will and sick. From Thursday morning he suffered terribly until the time of his death. He howled and snarled, and barked like a dog. He clawed and scratched at the bed-clothing until it was almost torn in shreds. Spasms and convulsions succeeded each other, racking his tortured body and causing him to foam at the mouth like a wild and rabid animal, and in his frenzy the veins swelled as if about to burst, and blood gushed in streams from the mouth and nostrils. The bed on which he was held down by strong men was saturated through and through by the criminal stream. He was conscious nearly the entire time, and devoted and self-sacrificing, firmly insisted that none of his agonized and weeping relatives should be allowed to come near him, as he was afraid that he might injure them. His father, who had been a saint, arrived just before his death, but on being told that he had come, he exclaimed, "Don't let him see me." At about 2 o'clock his sufferings became more intensified, and he screamed and shrieked, "Water! water! force it down me! Oh, death! hurry! hurry!" His attendant physicians, who had done all in their power to alleviate his sufferings, again administered chloroform most copiously, and its soothing and pain-deadening effects came with three blessed power, breaking the force of the last fearful moments of suffering, and the victim of hydrophobia escaped from his tortures at a quarter past two o'clock.

We beg to remind the advertising friends of THE NEWS, that we will publish, as usual, a few days before Christmas, a list of our Christmas advertisers, calling particular attention to stocks of goods chosen for the holiday season. In this way, advertisers in THE NEWS will enjoy a wider and more attractive publicity than can be given them by any other newspaper in the State.

Paying in Coin.

The bill to provide for the payment in coin of the interest and principal of the State debt was dead and is alive. A motion was made in the House on Thursday to strike out the enacting clause of the bill, and was carried, in spite of the squirming and blustering of the hangers-on of the Ring, and had the members of the lower House held aloof from the practical arguments which make the Senate the willing tool of Scott, Kilmington, Corbin & Co., the bond-jobbers would have been disappointed for once, and have failed in one of their schemes for robbing the people of the State.

As we have already explained, the State of South Carolina does no injustice to her creditors in paying her debts in the legal currency of the United States. What the United States gives to the National creditor, South Carolina gives to her creditors. This is all that is asked. There has been no word of complaint—except from the men who did not lend coin to the State, who did not expect to obtain coin in payment for their loan, but who did buy up State bonds and stocks at twenty and thirty cents on the dollar and now claim dollar for dollar in gold. No one denies that the prominent State officials bought up at starvation prices the bills of the Bank of the State. A list of the amounts so bought up and held by State and Federal officials has been published, and the truth of its statement was not denied. When the bills were in the right hands a law was passed authorizing their conversion into State bonds at par. In this way State bonds worth sixty-five cents on the dollar were obtained in exchange for bank bills costing ten or fifteen cents on the dollar. Fifteen thousand dollars was about the price of one hundred thousand dollars in bills of the Bank of the State, and the same amount of State bonds, obtained in exchange, could have been sold for at least sixty-five thousand dollars. Every fifteen dollars so invested would have paid sixty-five dollars into the pockets of the fortunate speculator. This, however, is not enough. The men who have received one hundred dollars in State bonds for every fifteen dollars invested in bills of the Bank of the State now ask that the bonds be paid in coin—that they receive one hundred dollars in gold for what cost them fifteen cents in currency. No wonder that the bulk of the members of the House of Representatives, who are not in the Ring, would not bear this crowning indignity; no wonder that the cow which has been milked so often kicked over the bucket at last.

But the virtuous indignation of the House did not last long. Yesterday the vote by which the enacting clause of the bill was stricken out was reconsidered, and, after a long debate, the bill passed its second reading. Only the formal third reading and the concurrence of the Senate now stand between South Carolina and the payment in coin of the interest on her debt. The House had the power to kill this monstrous job; but has only dealt it grievous wound. For a moment the members stood firm. The reason of their backsliding is suggested in the letter of our Columbia correspondent.

Well! South Carolina is about to resume specie payments. The interest of all our debt, except that created for Statehouse purposes, is to be liquidated in coin. And it may, perchance, be so liquidated until better men take the place of the stock-jobbers of the present General Assembly, when, unless gold be at par, the bill to resume specie payments will be speedily repealed. Nor must it be forgotten that the present General Assembly can itself repeal the law next week, or next month, if the members so desire.

Out of Their Mouths: The hiring squatters who pipe the praises of South Carolina Radicalism must be in a peck of trouble. The High Priests of the party, turning against them, denounce the corruption of its officials, and the brazen demands which seemed a sufficient answer to the charges of the opposition press, will not pass muster now. As long as THE CHARLESTON NEWS, alone and unaided, bore the burden of the blame heaped on independence by frustrated race-baiting and snarling vice, both penny-a-liner and paper-eater might content themselves with flippant declarations that what was said of Radical fraud and Radical lawlessness was wholly and utterly false. These brave declarations answered the tricksters and schemers bolder and more audacious, until, at last, two negro senators, Nash, of Richmond, and Cain, of Charleston, stand up in their places in the State Senate and brand as infamous the rogues of the party officials. The truth of their statements to the hired vandals of the party of Republicanism cannot and will not be denied.

"Senator" Nash, (colored,) said: "The 'senators do, come here to represent the interests of the people, but the interests of the officials. It does seem to me that there are some people who believe this is the last year of the Republican party, and for the last year we must give the officials of it big salaries, so that they may all be able to get all they can."

"Senator" Cain, (colored,) said: "It seems to me that the object of the Republican party is to be all the time increasing the salaries of its officials. And the people are complaining of it. They have to pay for it. The opposition party assert that the Republican party is squandering the people's money. Truth is a thing that cannot be gotten over. It is sometimes hard to take, especially when told by the opposition, but I fear the papers are coming mighty near the truth. Our officials do get good salaries, and with them are perquisites. I like to have said stealings, but I won't mean it, nevertheless. I don't not of 'em do like our officials down at Charleston seem to do, rob by law and steal by governmental declaration."

No wonder that Land Commissioner Leslie scored Nash and Cain for speaking as they did—which would only furnish capital for THE CHARLESTON NEWS. This kind of capital is too easily found. Its significance now lies in the fact that the impetuosity of the party comes from its trusted leaders, from colored senators who sway the negro masses who know of what they speak, and cannot, when the humor takes them, be gagged or cowed down.

A Good Sign.

Our legislators are improving. In a discussion the other day of the bill to pay the interest and principal of the State bonds in coin, several colored members of the House favored postponement for the more mature consideration of the measure. One Radical, bolder if not wiser and more honest than the rest, declared that "he, for one, should not vote to give gold interest to men who had bought State Bank bills at twenty cents on the dollar, funded the same, and then ask 'us to make their bonds par, as this measure aims to do. Further, said he, postpone this bill until we can learn the criticisms of the press, the voice of the people. He said 'the wanted light,' as did the people of the State. He thought it a little suspicious that the Comptroller's report was not yet furnished members, and it had probably been kept back for a purpose by the knowing ones."

This called forth a howl of rage from his brother Radicals. Everybody knew what "press" was meant. Tomlinson, the State Auditor, indignantly asked: "What press does he refer to? I can tell him what the press 'tinks. I can tell him what the press 'thinks. I can tell him, a month before they know themselves, what they will think. The press will think just opposite to what the General Assembly thinks. I don't care one cent for the press of this State. The press of this State has pursued such a course that no respectable man can care one iota for its criticism. I don't propose to give any such opportunity to criticize what we do. If we had cared for the criticism of the press of South Carolina we would have been under the ground long ago."

But in spite of the protestations of this Ruler, the great fact remains that the voice of an indignant public opinion, sounded day after day through these columns, is at length making itself heard, and that even among the colored men and white Radicals, who are our lawgivers for the nonce, there are not wanting those who have the sense to recognize in the criticisms of an independent press "the voice of the people."

What Does It Mean? The zeal which is manifested just now in the General Assembly in behalf of the scheme to disarm the white people of the State, is a little significant when taken in consideration with the industrious energy with which our valiant Governor is accumulating Winchester rifles and ball cartridges. We happen to know something of a series of recent consignments to R. K. Scott, which is just as well that our people—the white people of South Carolina—should know also. For instance, the steamship Champion brought to this port, on November 9, forty cases of rifles, one hundred and sixty cases of ball cartridges, and fifty cases of equipments. On November 16 the steamship Manhattan brought sixty cases of rifles, and on November 23 the steamship Champion brought nineteen cases of rifles and fifty cases of equipments. On November 26 the steamship Charleston brought twenty-eight cases of rifles. On December 1 the steamship Manhattan brought twenty cases, and December 6 the steamship Magnolia brought fifteen cases of rifles. And we have reason to know that more are expected. All these consignments—four hundred and forty-two cases in all—were addressed to R. K. Scott, at Columbia.

Now, what does all this mean? Is there a state of war in South Carolina? Or is Governor Scott merely making ready to repeat, on a large scale, at the State election next fall, the recent doings of his henchmen and their negro followers in Abbeville and Edgefield? If that be his little game, we can be Governor Scott that the white people of the State who have been deprived of their hard earnings to pay for these arms will, as sure as the sun shines, hold him and his thieving and cowardly minions to a strict account, personally, for the bloody work to come.

Tax Scales has concurred in the joint resolution requesting a report from the State Treasurer relative to the exact status of the State and H. H. Kimpson, the Financial Agent. The price of lime is rising in the Columbia market, in anticipation of extensive whitewashing.
